

Inventor's Dream

The dream of healing and improving lives has been my life's focus for nearly three decades. With each new product I create there is a single focus . . . the patient's wellbeing. It has been ten years since I imagined a line of products that would use the power of the olive to heal. Thousands believed in the dream and today I take special pleasure in knowing that so many have enjoyed a better life because of my Olivamine skin care products.

So many wonderful healing advancements have occurred over the past ten years. I have discovered ancient healing secrets resting deep within the grape vine, green tea leaf, olive leaf, apple fruit, oat kernel and Shea nut.

I have also gained a profound respect for the importance of selecting healing ingredients from plants that have been grown organically. I feel that it is no longer acceptable to heal with natural ingredients from plants that have been treated with pesticides and toxins.

The Viniferamine Skin Care line is more than a collection of the most carefully crafted products I have ever imagined in my 30-year career. Stepping out of retirement, knowing that I could and must do even better has given me the opportunity to reflect on all that is good about caring for others.
